THE UNIVERSITY BOAT BACE. The University Boat Ruce has of course beer the leading topic of the week. I cannot tell you Defendant was fined $24, in default one The papers may state what they please, but three to one were offered on Cambridge on the morning of the race with no takers. The result proved the correctness of these unticipations, for although the Oxford boat came in three lengths astern only, the men were so complately used up, that-well, they could not ret out of the boat-the Cambridge men being still in good working order. The concourse of people was enormous the day was in fact kept as a jubilee, or a boliday, the streets of the metropolis being as empty as if it were Sanday. This is a most unaccountable national fantasy. If the winning crew were to send a challenge to the London Rowing Clab and Kingston combined, I venture to think that comparatively few people would go to see the struggle. The race would probably be in favour of London against a united crew of both Universities, but no one would care so much about it as they do about the University race. America, to rouse the people. Those who care conveyance of troops and ammunition; and about the best horse-racing solder trouble themselves to go to the Derhy or Goodwood; they go to Newmarket, where the horse-racing is to-the seen. In the same way anuateur watermen talk ab at the University race as "the blue riband," go to see that and neglect Henley, and all the really fine racing which the London Rowing Club gives us every year. This is hardly fair.

The very confusion and vagueness of the reports beiray the extent to which civil war has supersaded the orderly march of affairs; communications being interrupted, and each faction in each province doing its best to further its own ends, no matter at what sacrifice to the general tranquillity. Amid all the mist of contradictory statements just one fact looms out with ominous clearness, and that is the reluctance with which the regular troops act against the common enemy. If the Carlists are even obecked, the success is not followed up; if a new general is appointed and collects a force numerically strong, he is at once paralysed by the insubordination of his own men. Thus the Carlists, left to themselves, cut the railways, stop the mails, live on the villagers, and blockade the country towns. The miserable peasantry and farmers, harassed and outraged by both sides, are numble to trade, to labour, or to pay taxes; the them, must necessarily be against them, and revenue suffers when funds are most wanted; nounces the state of the national finances to they will soon number none but fanatics in be "deplorable." To complete the picture, we have an element of farce introduced by a solemn announcement from Madrid to the effect that the Carlists are preparing a loan of 140,000,000 reals. To an outsider it would seem an open question which of the two operations is the more hazardous, a loan to the actual Govern. ment or one to the Carlists, since impecuniosity and bad management are conspicuous in both;

but the fact that people should even speak of a " Carlist loan as possible is a feature worth noting. Meanwhile the famous fighting curé of Santa Cruz has, it appears, published a vindication of his proceedings against the attacks made by foreign journalists, who thought that when the Carlists took to flugging prisoners it was quite time to cry halt. His reverence repels the charges, and, to show the pature of his action, publishes the instructions addressed by Don Carlos to his chiefs. If these are correctly given, the object of the Pretender would appear to be to carry on war in the mildest-manuered fashion known to history. Opinions are to be respected; officers and soldiers who are taken prisoners are to be released ; The railways are not to be touched, unless the companies, after negotiation, refuse to stop the removed and the fortified stations destroyed, This reads very well; but the question is, Have not the commanders bettered their instructions? As the war bas hitherto been carried on, the Carlist Generals have committed fisgrant atrocities in the way of shooting peasants and burning villages. The applogetic missive of the cura, however, is a sign of deference to public opinion; and that, at least, is something.

These sums of £:80,000 will suffice to meet the most pressing needs of the Government until the end of March.

An "extraordinary scene," according to the Cornich Telegraph, took place at the wrick of the Lalla Rookh at Salcombe. On the arrival of Lloyd's agent from Dartmouth he made an offer of £1 to each man who would swim through the surf and reach the ship, and £10 if they could unbend all the sails and get them ashere. To attempt to reach the ressel by such means was most hazardous, yet several embraced the offer. On their way every now and then the sea would break over them with great force, and one man nearly lost his life, while those on sliore watched with breathless anxiety the struggles of the men with the heavy sea that rolled in, tremulous lest any of them should | ion of the Russian press concerning Khiva, and lose their lives; but all eventually, gained the ridicules English feeling on the subject. ship. By the time that they had unbent the sails of the mizenment it was nearly dark, and it was necessary for the men to begin to make their return journey. But with the incoming tide the surf had increased, and there was not one daring enough now to make the attempt apparatus had again to be fetched from Prawle, | war in the harbour. and by this means the men were safely brought ! on shore. It is impossible to read this account without feeling the deepest possible sympathy not only with the men; but also with " Lloyd's Brest. agent," who must have suffered the most intense mental anguish at feeling constrained by a sense of duty to tempt these men to risk their formation for libel. lives in such a venture. The American merchant service has no fixed code, but asually their signals are those of Marryat's code. Some of the newer vessels have, however, adopted the international code; but there is no uniformity, and this causes great confusion, while to a ocrtain extent it has prevented help being given to vessels which are disabled. The international code has been adopted by the navy of the United States for some time, and the Secretary of the Treasury recently prepared a Bill which he sent to the Senute Committee of Commerce, making the adoption of the code obligatory upon the merchant service for all to issue Policies of Insurance, at the current ressels sailing upon the lakes or high seas rates of Premium at the respective places. which are over 200 tons burthen. # ERSKINE ON BURKE.

"What a prodigy Burke was!" he exclaimed. "He came to see me not long before he died. I then lived on Hampsteadhill. 'Come. Erskine.' said he, holding out his hand, 'let us forget all; I shall soon quit ! this stage, and wish to die in peace with the sentiment, and we took a turn round the grounds. Suddenly, he stopped. An extensive prospect broke upon him. He stood, rapt in thought, gazing on the sky, as the sun was setting. Ah! Erskine, he said, pointing towards it, 'you cannot spoil that because you cannot reach it: it would otherwise go; yes, the firmament itself-you and related in the best manner. In my form of high a source, I asked him about it. "It was in the House of Commons when he made the benches like a dog, until I got to the door without his seeing me, rejoicing in my escape. Next day I went to the Isle of Wight. When the speech followed me there, I read it over and over again; I could hardly think of anything else; I car-
